Assemblyman Lists Six Issues for City

Assemblyman Vincent Thomas voluntarily placed himself on the hook last week with six promises made to the Torrance City Council.

1. Submit a bill which, if passed, will provide Torrance with a Municipal Court when the city has attained an official census of 40,000.
2. Seek to enlarge the $52,000 appropriation for a National Guard Armory to $100,000 and
3. Give attention to the progress of the appropriation for a State Employment Service office building here.
4. Devote special attention to solving of traffic control problems of state highways within the city and especially the intersection of Roberts Rd. with Pacific Coast Hwy.

5. Watchdog any bill which would favor raising the current sales tax.

6. Guard against legislation which would affect annexation of fringe areas.

Asks for Help
The assemblyman asked for a little help on these and other matters. He suggested that at the time bills affecting the city were before the Legislature for action that it would be advisable for Torrance to be represented in Sacramento.

Comments on Thomas' promises, City Manager George W. Stevens said that he might call for a special census next year. The census would be the basis for readjusting the amount of in-land taxes and other state and county-collected money paid to the City of Torrance.

Double Tax Eyed
Because Torrance is bounded by much unincorporated county territory, the city is watching with interest any legislation affecting forced annexation and the so-called "double taxation" of persons living within a city and paying for city-operated police departments as well as paying part of the bill for polling unincorporated territory under the county sheriff's jurisdiction.

The city already has gone on record as being opposed to any legislation which would raise the present sales tax to four percent. Proponents of the measure seek to have the tax upped one cent with three quarters of a cent going to the county and one quarter going to the city.

boat, Cabrillo was pressed into service.

After six hours of grappling, the operations were called off at darkness and resumed the following day, with no results.

The rock from which the Narbonne High School boy was swept to his death was the scene of a similar drowning of a San Pedro man last year.

Wave Sweeps HC Boy To Death In Ocean

Swept to his death by a towering wave last Sunday afternoon, the body of 14-year-old Dwayne McClelland, Harbor City boy, still lies unrecovered in the rocky waters off Pt. Fermin despite continuous searching by San Pedro lifeguards.

The boy, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McClelland, 909 W. 26th St., lost his life while fishing from a slippery rock 200 yards west of the Pt. Fermin lighthouse.

His companion, Jack Boyce, 14, 25503 Marigold Ave., Harbor City, barely escaped with his life when the mountainous wave cascaded over both boys.

The Boyce boy told police how the sudden wave snatched his companion from the rock and swept him out to sea.

"I was standing about eight feet behind Dwayne when all of a sudden this big wave appeared way over our heads. I screamed at Dwayne, and we both turned and ran."

"But the wave hit us, and I dug my fingers into the rock and hung on with all my might. I saw Dwayne trying to hold on, too."

But the huge wave plucked Dwayne from the rocks and carried him out into the dangerous waters. About 150 yards from the rock, he suddenly sank.

Jack's cries for help attracted passersby who summoned lifeguards.

Capt. John Olguin dove for nearly an hour searching for the body, then the lifeguard rescue

LEO S. MASTERSON NOW ABOARD SUBMARINE PIPER
Leo S. Masterson, radioman second class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo W. Masterson, 616 E. Carson St., is serving aboard the submarine USS Piper that recently conducted a continuous search for eight Navy airmen lost when their plane crashed in Narragansett Bay near New London, Conn.

The Piper was conducting routine airsea operations in the Long Island Sound when the plane crashed into the sea. The submarine began search operations within minutes after the mishap occurred, but no survivors were found.
